life is an extension of the mind

In an age of extensive communication, we have become increasingly more aware of what is happening now, to us, in 1968. To understand history, a scholar must study not only the ancient past, but also the happenings of today, which will be history tomorrow. Similarly, the man who wishes to remain in contact with the reality of today must understand yesterday and anticipate tomorrow. In an attempt to study "yesterday," the school year 1967-1968, REMEMBRANCER has assumed a theme of today—Marshall McLuhan's idea of extension. For today is an extension of yesterday, and tomorrow is a continuation of today. REMEMBRANCER 1968 is, therefore, as McLuhan would describe it, "a look around to see what's happening."

Mr. Raymond J. Brokamp

Miss Violet Balastra

The school year 1967-1968 was at times a struggle for the students, teachers, and administrators at Walnut Hills High School. The problems in scheduling the new seven-period day, the controversies over the dress code, and the teacher strike threatened the unity which had once been so evident among the twenty-six hundred pupils and teachers who are Walnut Hills. The role of a principal in such trying times is to attempt to reestablish unity and to retain it. Mr. Raymond J. Brokamp, formerly assistant principal at Walnut Hills, did just that, and with the help of Mr. Louis Heilmann and Miss Violet Balastra, Walnut Hills remained an entity. The mutual leadership experienced in the student-teacher-administrator relationship was very ably led by these three principals.

Varsity Football

This year's football squad, having lost only a few graduating lettermen, came on strong under Coach Willard Stargel's able guidance. The Eagles opened the season with a great 26-12 victory over Lemon-Monroe and closed with an equally stunning 32-8 defeat over Taft. In between, triumphant victories and discouraging setbacks carried the Eagles to a .500 record. A crowd of enthusiastic spectators followed the Eagles to Dayton Fairbourn where they played great ball against this state-ranked team, only to lose by one touchdown in the last forty-five seconds. The following week, the crowd returned to watch their mighty team suppress the Withrow Tigers for the second season in a row. So the season went, exciting victories coupled with stinging losses.

Gary Blakey's prowess as a quarterback, combined with Harold Jefferies' fantastic running ability, was one of the Eagles' outstanding assets this year. Senior running backs like Mike Oldham and Edd Duemler also sparked the Eagles' offensive, while Greg Harris led the able defensive squad at every game.

Quarterback Gary Blakey is hauled down by an opposing tackler.

Varsity Basketball

This year's basketball record of 3-15 did not truly reveal the abilities of the individual players. Their failure to unite under Coach Lunsford's guidance, and also their difficulty in working as a team were the causes of their losses. But individually, the players were exceptionally capable.

Captain Mike Oldham was without a doubt the team's most outstanding player. Oldham led the city's scorers in the season's beginning with a 25.4 point average. Unfortunately, his point average fell off, dropping him to sixth position. His 31 points scored against both Hamilton Garfield and Courter were his season's best scores. Senior Harold Jefferies sparked the team with his exceptional shooting ability. Leg injuries plagued seniors Ken Revelson and Pat Ecker and limited their playing abilities.

The juniors and sophomores on the team showed great potential for a winning season in 1969.

Mike Oldham leaps high to put one in.

Student Council

The school year 1967-1968 was a turbulent one for Senior Student Council and for its president, Darryl Conliffe. Vehement disagreements over the school's required dress code and the timeless discussion of the question, "What has happened to school spirit?" often provided Council with frustrating arguments. Council's committees excelled, especially the American Field Service, which raised over one-half of its needed money on "Dollar Day" so that it could concentrate on making the exchange students' stay at Walnut Hills a more enjoyable experience. Money and within-the-school problem solving were not the only accomplishments of this year's Council, however. In late winter and early spring the Evaluation Committee led a series of open discussions about race relations at Walnut Hills. Student Council thus became more than an opportunity for high school students to practice government: it became an influence in the reality of their daily lives.

Fall Play

A new period in drama at Walnut Hills was initiated this fall with the Drama Club's excellent production of George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion. Many "firsts" were achieved: the production was the newly-formed club's first performance, it marked the first Walnut Hills production for the director, Miss Karen Kramer, and it marked the acting débuts of Patty Titchener and Peter Lichstein, who performed laudably in the roles of Eliza Doolittle and Henry Higgins. Effective also in this performance was the scenery, which provided a realistic background for Shaw's modern dramatization of an ancient myth. Pygmalion was the first in what promises to be a vigorous new theatrical program at Walnut Hills.

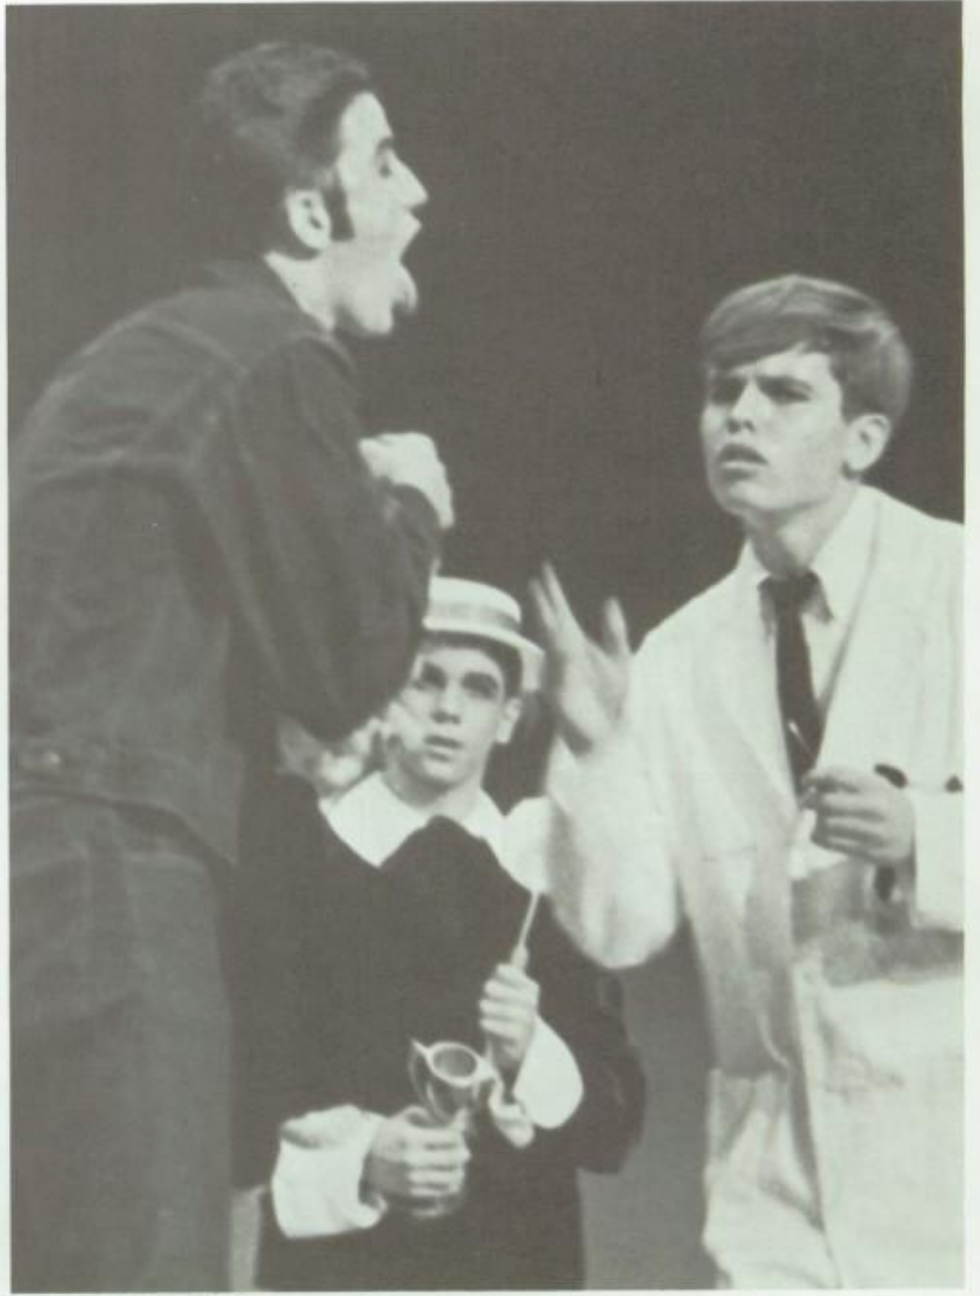

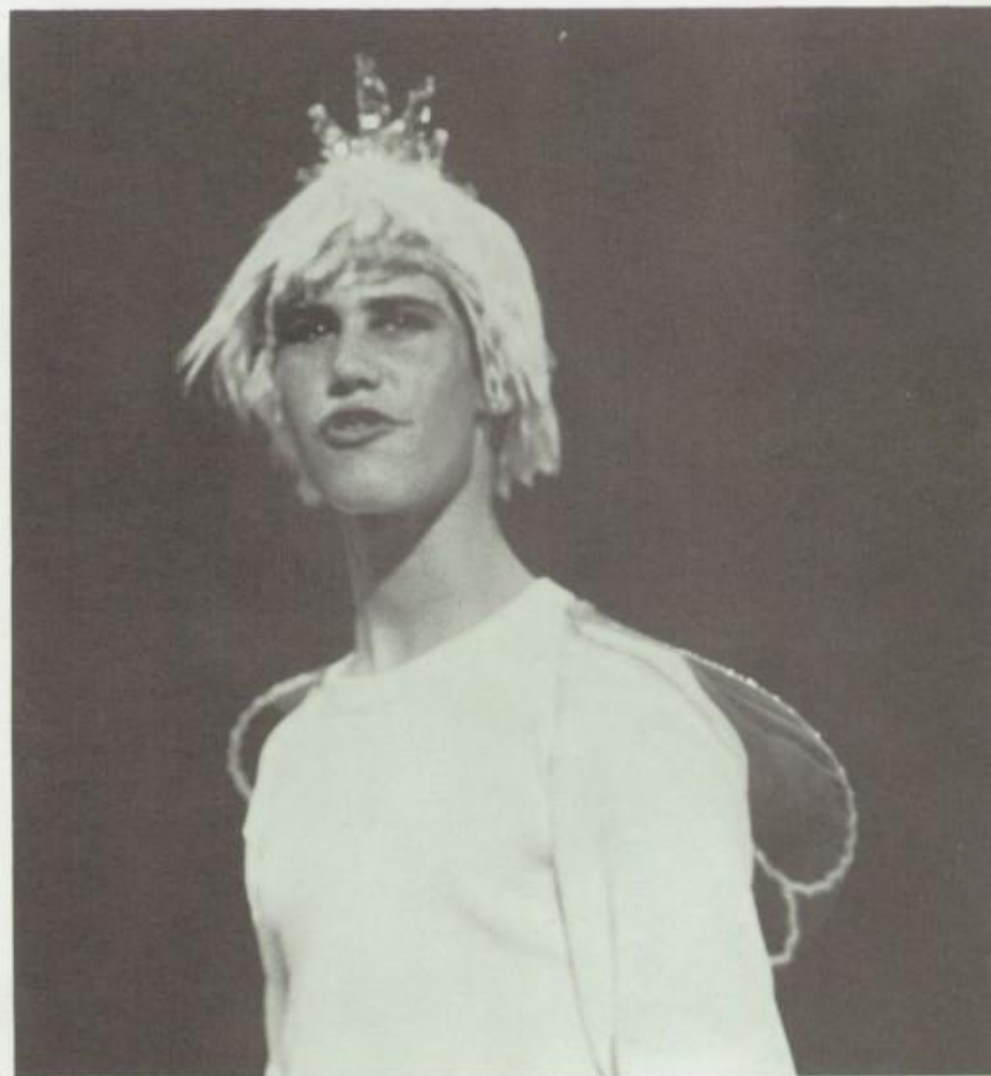

Peanuts

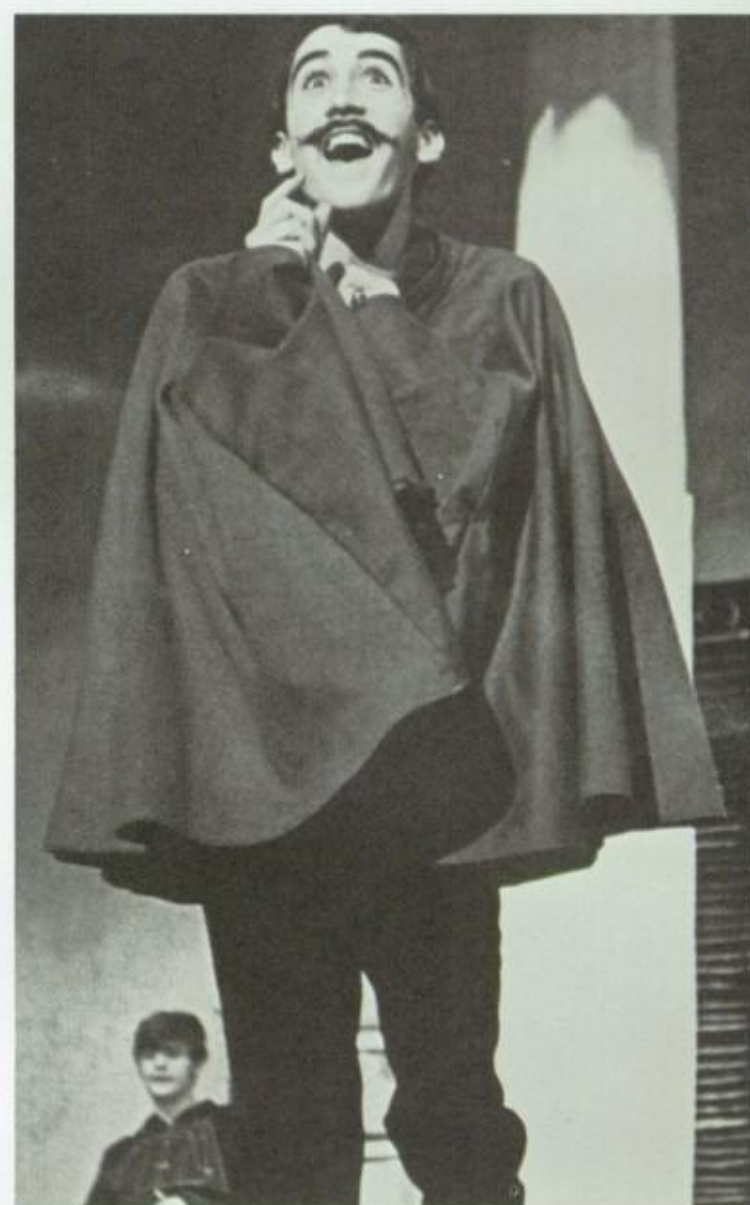

For five years the class of 1969 has been merely a conglomeration of people, yet all that is needed is one act of union, one common interest, to make this crowd of faces an entity. At Walnut Hills, such an act is Peanuts. Under the direction of Carol Pleatman and Rav Wellbaum, "The Most Unforgettable Peanuts Ever" changed the junior class into The Junior Class. The method was simple: a great deal of work by a huge number of dedicated people. It was a space-age parody of The Wizard of Oz, a tale of Dorothy, her space dog Ralph, and the various eccentric characters they met during their search for the wizard. It was a combination of the singing, dancing, and acting talents of many. Some, such as Gordon Jenkins' singing and Anne Brown's dancing, stood out and thus made the memories of this year's Peanuts that much better. But the quality of any such show is only incidental to its creators. Any junior will tell you that this year's Peanuts was the most unforgettable ever, and therein lies its true significance. This is the common spirit, that substance with which a class is born.

Each year, the leadership of the school falls to a new set of people, a new senior class. It is a never-ending progression as different students continuously file through the same process of growth. There is a basic similarity—that of traditions—tying together all such groups. The class rally, the class play, the Christmas assembly and homecoming, the honors assembly, the prom, and commencement, all hold a special place in every senior class. Nevertheless, this year's senior class utilized its own methods to promote class spirit and unity. The toothbrush sale, the "Spirit of 68" pins, and the breakfast after Prom were all directed toward this one purpose. They may never become traditions for every senior class, but they have been devised by this group of leaders and have made it unique.

Commencement will soon be over, and a new set of faces will again be established as leaders. The old will become an extension of the school and of its people, an extension which will bring further dignity to that institution from which it springs.

Congratulations To Our

Boys and Girls

We have watched the progress of the class of '68 with pride and affection. We have seen you meet Walnut Hills' standards of academic excellence and excel in the performance of extra-curricular activities. We believe this augurs well for the future.

Having started so well, we are sure you will meet with ease the obstacles of the academic and career world. If on the way you stop for a moment and think of your high school years, we hope it will be with fondness and a sense of time well spent.

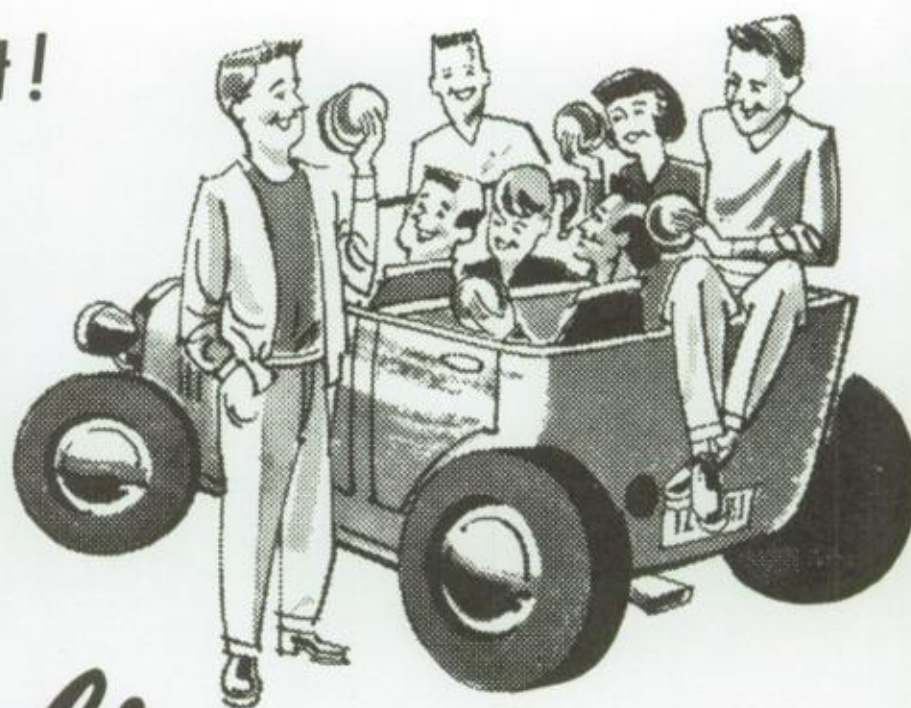

Your parents and teachers

We like YES
to say

YES Every banking service is yours at Provident.

YES Every Provident person you meet wants to help you . . . whether you need investment counsel, a savings or checking account, or any of the many other Provident ways to help you with money.

YES Many people driving new cars, buying homes, educating their children or meeting medical bills, have been helped by their friends at Provident.

YES And when you plan a vacation, your friends at Provident Travel Service are right here to smooth the way, wherever you go.

YES We would like to have you stop in at any of 20 offices where each staff member is ready to be of service.

Compliments of
Friend

A hand-drawn sketch of a person's face, characterized by a wide, toothy grin and large, round glasses. The hair is depicted with dense, scribbled lines. The face is framed by a simple outline, and several wavy lines with arrowheads point towards it, suggesting a sense of motion or sound. The drawing is done in a simple, expressive style with black ink on a white background.

Homeroom 337

HOMEROOM IMPOSSIBLE

That's the most dangerous assignment yet

That settles it, as of today I'm going back to Fury.

They're one of a kind

Your mission, should you decide to accept it, is to remain for an entire homeroom period in 404. Good luck guys (we're praying for you).
